● Sydney

Sydney is the largest city in Australia. ...

... Sydney's warm climate and accessible harbour make it one of the top ten cities in the world for desirable living conditions.

Tuesday

A near stationary low pressure area extends through Queensland and New South Wales. ...

... A large high will keep southern Australia clear.

Thursday

Moist easterlies from the Tasman Sea will bring widespread showers and storms through Queensland and to areas north of Sydney. A high pressure system will keep southern Australia clear.

Trish (City Councillor)

I've worked hard to have this site approved by Council. These buildings are an eyesore because they are so old and rundown. We are working to develop a sustainable city and by increasing our green space, this will provide recreational facilities for all ages.

I am a third year university student, majoring in Urban Planning. It is important that any city development plans incorporate healthy green spaces, in order to improve the quality of life for inner city residents. The trees will help release more oxygen into the urban landscape.

Aaron (University Student)

Harold (Retired Teacher)

I am 70 years old. The park will be somewhere for me to meet my friends, discuss the footy results and play petanque. I will miss the old buildings as I have fond memories of living there when Sheila and I were first married.

Resource J continued: Viewpoints relating to inner city developments

I work for the Historic Preservation Society and am appalled that the Sydney Parks' Committee is planning on knocking these historic buildings down. I live nearby and often work late. It is currently very stressful walking home at night. Walking past this park in the dark will become a real safety issue.

Wendy (Solo Parent)

As a solo parent living in a tenth floor unit, having a park this close will give my children somewhere to play. I will no longer need to pay for public transport to get to the nearest park, or take my children into the city for swimming lessons.
