Guidance Information

- 1 Sociology is the rigorous and methodical study of society. Sociologists investigate the structure of groups, organisations, and societies, and how people interact in these contexts.
- 2 This unit standard can be awarded with an Achieved, Merit, or Excellence grade as specified below.

Examine a social structure means to investigate the main ideas, characteristics or components of social structures in order to provide an explanation of their influence on individuals, groups and society. The examination could include a consideration of Māori and/or Pasifika context(s).

Examine a social structure in detail requires an informed explanation of the significance of the social structure. An informed explanation may involve:

- explaining how the social structure shapes and influences identities and behaviours;
- identifying the individuals and groups involved;
- providing an example(s) from New Zealand and/or other societies;
- drawing some conclusion(s) about the significance of the social structure.

Conclusion(s) must be drawn and supported with appropriate evidence and examples.

Comprehensively examine a social structure means to support the examination with a comprehensive range of appropriate evidence and examples.

- 3 Social structures shape identities and social interactions. They may include, but are not limited to, ethnicity, gender, age, and class.
