

NCEAOnline

Offering digital NCEA exams for students to prepare them for how they will work, live and continue to learn now and in the future.

Giving our students the best start

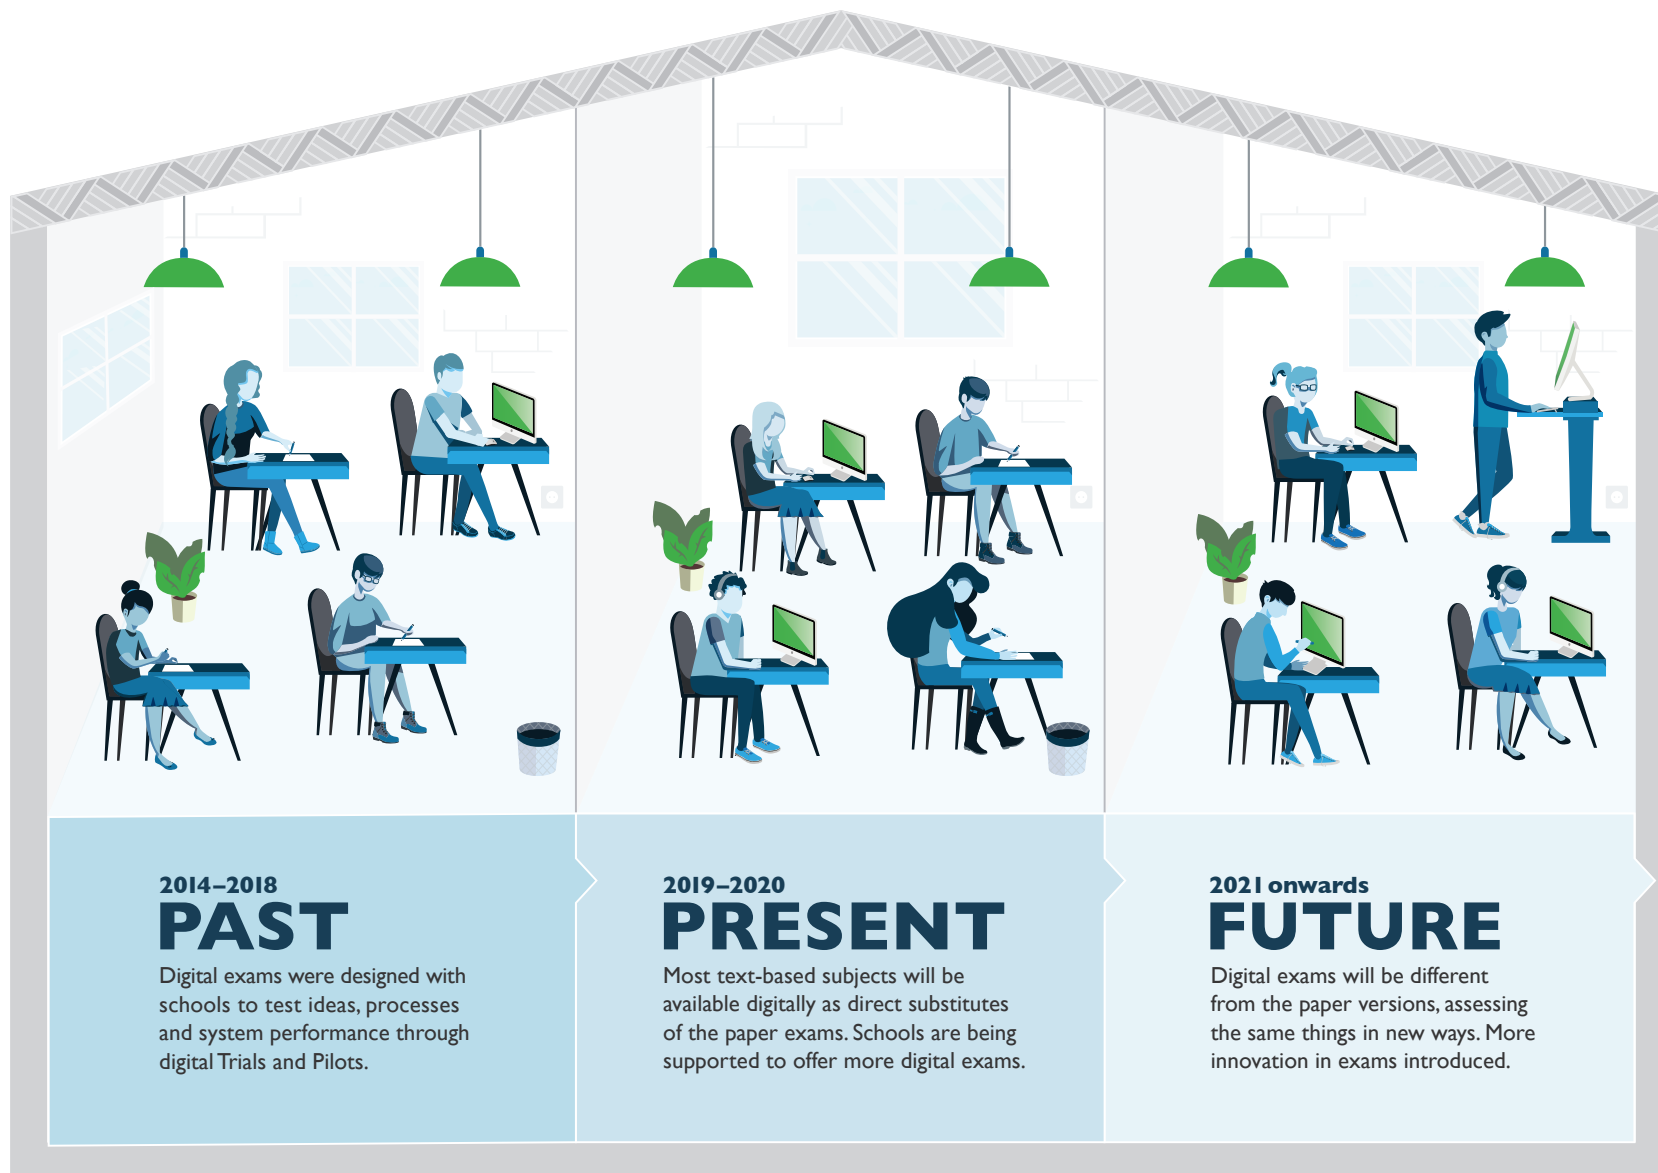

The way students sit NCEA exams is changing from hand-written papers to sitting assessments online. This reflects the way students learn and use devices every day and better equips them for contemporary life and work.

Evolution not revolution

Digital exams are being introduced in stages over the next few years. Initially, digital exams are direct substitutes of the paper versions and will evolve over time in line with classroom teaching and learning and broader assessment practice.

It's a choice

NZQA is working with schools and students to support their ability to offer exams online. Paper exams will remain an option for now.
