NZ Certificates in English Language (NZCEL) Guiding Document

The purpose of this guiding document is to provide detailed information to support NZCEL providers and consistent practice.

The guiding document is not intended as a teaching and learning guide. Programme and assessment task design remain the responsibility of the education organisation.

NZCEL QUALIFICATION STRUCTURE

The NZCEL suite consists of nine qualifications at seven different levels informed by the Common European Framework of Reference (CEFR). These are:

- NZCEL Foundation (Level 1) (CEFR A1) [Ref: 1879] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 1 (CEFR A2) [Ref: 1880] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 2 (CEFR mid B1) [Ref: 1881] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 3 General (CEFR high B1) [Ref: 1882] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 3 Applied (CEFR low B2) [Ref: 3667] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 4 Academic (CEFR mid B2) [Ref: 1883] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 4 General (CEFR mid B2) [Ref: 3669] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 4 Employment (CEFR mid B2) [Ref: 3668] (60 credits)
- NZCEL Level 5 Academic (CEFR high B2) [Ref: 1884] (60 credits)

Refer to Appendix 1 for New Zealand Certificates in English Language Landscape.

EDUCATION PATHWAYS

Entry criteria: NZCEL providers are expected to accurately place learners in the correct NZCEL programmes of study that best reflect their abilities and needs. They must use an initial placement test that clearly discriminates English Language proficiency across all NZCEL levels. This should be followed by more intensive diagnostic testing in the first weeks of the programme to confirm and enable accurate placement of learners.

Note that for English language learners transitioning into tertiary institutions from the secondary school context, NCEA achievement and/or placement on the English Language Learning Progressions should be taken into consideration for placement purposes.

Pathways: Progression from one NZCEL level to the next is illustrated in Appendix 2 for NZCEL Progressions Mapped to CEFR and IELTS Levels. This helps inform placement into NZCEL programmes.

It is recommended that learners progressing through the suite of qualifications take NZCEL Level 3 Applied prior to enrolling in Level 4 Academic. It is also recommended that learners take NZCEL Level 4 Academic, if they intend to study NZCEL Level 5.

Refer to Appendix 3 for NZCEL Study Pathways into Mainstream Programmes.
RECOGNITION OF LEARNING

Education organisations must have policies and procedures in place for managing Credit Recognition and Transfer (CRT), and Recognition of Prior Learning (RPL). These policies and procedures, and associated fees, must be available to the learners prior to enrolment.

Where recognition of existing skills and knowledge is required by the learner, this will be arranged by the education organisation delivering the NZCEL programme leading to the qualification.

To facilitate CRT, education organisations must clearly demonstrate the equivalency between each of the outcomes in the graduate profile, and the assessment components of their programmes.

Relevant unit standards already achieved by the learner may be credited to the qualification.

CRT and RPL must take into consideration provider policies and procedures, as well as NZQA guidelines.

For further guidance go to:

- Recognising learning for credit: Guidelines for recognition and award of learning for credit

GUIDANCE TO SUPPORT ASSESSMENT

General Conditions

- There is no required sequence for the assessment of graduate outcomes.
- Graduate outcomes must be assessed via tasks relevant to the context of the learner and the purpose of the qualification. Tasks may be assessed in authentic or simulated situations.
- It is recommended that the assessment tasks are assessed using an integrated approach where appropriate. This approach involves assessing a range of English language skills as part of a unit of work.
- Text types and assessment settings should reflect the context in which the programme leading to the qualification is being delivered.
- The assessor must be satisfied that the learner can independently demonstrate competence against programme standards of performance, ability or understanding.
- At all levels of NZCEL, monolingual or bilingual dictionaries may be used. It is recommended that electronic devices are not used for summative assessment purposes, except for word processing. Assessors need to ensure that usage of devices does not compromise authenticity and independent demonstration of competence. It is important that dictionaries used by learners are at an appropriate level.

Assessment Support for Learners at Level 1 – Level 2

NZCEL Foundation Level 1:
Assessment must be conducted in a highly supportive environment. This means that the context should be very familiar, assessors can assist learners to understand the requirements of the task, where required, and affective barriers are minimised. In oral exchanges the interlocutor should speak very slowly and clearly and may repeat or rephrase questions. All assessment activities must be in English. However, instructions may be given in the learner’s first language.
NZCEL Level 1:
Assessment must be conducted in a supportive environment. This means that the context should be familiar, learners may request assistance to understand the requirements of the task and affective barriers are minimised. In oral exchanges the interlocutor should speak slowly and clearly and may repeat or rephrase questions.

NZCEL Level 2:
Assessment must be conducted in a supportive environment. This means that the context should be familiar, learners may request clarification of task requirements and affective barriers are reduced. In oral exchanges the interlocutor may repeat or rephrase questions.

Learner Responses to Assessment
Reading and listening are receptive skills. The focus must be on evidence indicating understanding, rather than spoken or written accuracy of learner responses.

For speaking and writing, the focus must be on evidence indicating productive skills.

Foundation – Level 2: Responses may contain phonological, textual or linguistic errors and inaccuracies, but these should not obscure meaning.

Level 3 General Responses may contain phonological, textual or linguistic errors and/or inaccuracies, but these do not obscure meaning.

Level 3 Applied Responses may contain minor phonological, textual or linguistic inaccuracies, but these do not obscure meaning.

Level 4: Responses may contain some minor phonological, textual or linguistic inaccuracies, which do not obscure meaning, or interfere with fluency.

Level 5: Responses may contain very occasional minor phonological, textual or linguistic inaccuracies, which do not obscure meaning, or interfere with fluency.

Sufficiency Guidance
The sufficiency guidance statements include expected task length, text types, number of assessment occasions etc. which should be referred to when designing assessment tasks.

The number of assessment occasions has been determined to cover the range of discourse/text types for each skill area, and to show sufficient evidence of learners’ ability to repeat the same level of performance in different contexts and on different topics. It is expected that there should be three assessments for the 15 credits each graduate profile outcome covers. This is in line with level two and above English Language unit standards, where a five-credit standard typically requires one assessment.

Note that minimum text lengths and times may be exceeded, if appropriate to the learning and teaching context

NZCEL Level 4 Academic
The sufficiency guidance statements include the mandatory unit standards and an expected approach to assessment design to ensure that programmes contain sufficient learning components and assessments to make up the 60 credits required for the qualification.

Refer to Appendix 4 for Sufficiency and Assessment Guidance for New Zealand Certificates in English Language (NZCEL)
Retention of Assessment Materials

Assessment materials must be kept for moderation and NZQA monitoring and assessment purposes. The assessment materials to be retained are:

- all summative assessment tasks used to assess learners (for example, assignments, tests, portfolios, recordings of presentations)
- resources used by the assessor to guide their judgements (for example, learner resource material attached to the completed assessment, assessment schedules, marking guides or rubrics, evidence and judgement statements)
- marked learner work for all assessment tasks including any resubmissions or further assessment opportunities.

and private training establishments should refer to PTE enrolment and academic records rules found at: https://www.nzqa.govt.nz/assets/About-us/Our-role/Rules/enrolment-academic-records-amend2016.pdf complex At NZCEL Level 5 learners can understand texts which include many inter-related facts and/or ideas communicated using academic and/or specialised vocabulary and complex sentence structures.

Reading:

gist Understanding the gist of a text involves asking the question: ‘What is this text as a whole about?’ It is related to identifying the overall meaning and may involve skimming, avoiding detail and omitting or giving less attention to some sections of texts.

key information Key information is the most important information in texts at lower levels.

main idea Main idea is the most important or central thought of a paragraph or larger section of text.

specific information Specific information refers to discrete items, for example dates, times, places, names, prices, percentages, numbers, measurements, acronyms, addresses, URLs. Specific information is often expressed as nouns and adjectives.

supporting details Supporting information refers to additional information that explains, develops or illustrates the writer’s main idea, for example reasons, causes, examples.

straightforward texts At NZCEL Level 2, learners can understand texts which are uncomplicated in terms of their content and structure. Such texts do not require learners to infer meaning.

Writing:

simple connected texts Simple connected texts use a limited range of conjunctions and other connectives to explicitly link facts and ideas.

connected texts Connected texts use conjunctions and other connectives to explicitly link facts and/or ideas.

clear connected texts Clear connected texts use a range of conjunctions and other connectives to explicitly link facts and/or ideas.

moderately complex texts At NZCEL Level 4, learners can produce texts which include inter-related facts and/or ideas communicated using some academic and/or specialised vocabulary and some complex sentence structures.

Speaking and Writing:

Inaccuracies Refer to lapses in control in written text structure and language features, vocabulary, spelling and punctuation.

Inconsistencies Refer to variable control in spoken language features, where the learner can self-correct if necessary.

errors Refer to systematic use of incorrect language features.
Vocabulary Levels

The sufficiency statements for NZCEL Levels 1-4 refer to the New General Service List (NGSL). This list, along with tools for profiling texts, supporting research and materials and frequently asked questions can be accessed at: http://www.newgeneralservicelist.org/.

The sufficiency statements for NZCEL Levels 4-5 refer to the New Academic Word List (NAWL). This list, along with tools for profiling texts, teaching materials and supporting information can be accessed at: http://www.newgeneralservicelist.org/nawl-new-academic-word-list/.

Language Skills and Control Descriptors

The NZCEL Language Skills and Control Descriptors specify the linguistic abilities which learners are expected to demonstrate at each level. These should inform the development of assessment tasks to meet the graduate profile outcomes.

Refer to Appendix 5 for NZCEL Language Skills and Control Descriptors
OPTIONS FOR PROVIDING EVIDENCE OF ACHIEVEMENT

The following options can be considered when approaching assessment of NZCEL learning outcomes:

1. Formative and summative assessment

   Formative assessment is used to inform teaching and learning to improve student achievement. It involves the teacher and the learner gaining information from assessment and using this collaboratively to plan future learning activities. Formative assessment is constant, through classroom observations and interactions.

   Summative assessment is intended to summarise student achievement at a particular time. It measures the outcome of an educational programme i.e. the relevant skills and knowledge gained by the conclusion of the programme.

   For further information go to:

2. Unit standards

   - English Language unit standards

     The English Language unit standards are designed to align with the NZCEL qualifications in content and credit value. They can be used to assess all or part of the NZCEL qualifications.

     These standards can be accessed at:

     Refer to Appendix 6 English Language (EL) and English for Academic Purposes (EAP) unit standards – mapped to NZCEL graduate profile outcomes.

   - English for Academic Purposes (EAP) unit standards

     The Level 3 EAP standards can be used to assess part of NZCEL (Applied) (Level 3) [Ref: 3667].

     The Level 4 EAP standards are mandatory for NZCEL (Academic) (Level 4) [Ref:1883]. Note that while Level 4 EAP standards are mandatory, programmes must also include sufficient learning components and assessment to make up the 60 credits required for the qualification.

     Refer to Appendix 6 English Language (EL) and English for Academic Purposes (EAP) unit standards – mapped to NZCEL graduate profile outcomes to show additional standards which can be used to meet this requirement.

NOTE: When assessing against unit standards for NZCEL, assessment requirements may differ e.g. text length. Providers need to be mindful of the differences and take care to ensure that the requirements of both NZCEL and unit standards are met.
3. Naturally occurring evidence

This is evidence derived from activities and/or completed assessments within a learning programme and/or from a learner’s actual work performance and/or everyday life. It can be collected from a range of real contexts, including classroom or workplace over a period of time. Evidence can be gathered from:

- learning activities in other subjects that a learner is studying
- employment documentation or evidence of work tasks e.g. work logs, incident reports
- involvement with family, sport, leisure or community e.g. creating a budget, comparing purchases
- study in a mainstream subject or academic discipline or other directed study at New Zealand Qualifications Framework Levels 3-5.

Note that learner evidence from other subject or discipline areas must be:

- assessed by an English language specialist
- verified for authenticity.

Learner evidence from naturally occurring evidence must be recorded and securely stored for moderation, NZQA monitoring and assessment purposes.

For NZQA guidance on different ways of gathering evidence to demonstrate that learners have met graduate profile outcomes see: https://www.nzqa.govt.nz/providers-partners/assessment-and-moderation-of-standards/assessment-of-standards/generic-resources/gathering-evidence-of-achievement/

4. Portfolio of assessment

This is a systematic way of collecting evidence that a learner has met qualification outcomes. It is a form of authentic assessment that can be used for both formative and summative assessment purposes.

All portfolio evidence contributing to the achievement of learning outcomes must be recorded and securely stored for moderation, and NZQA monitoring and assessment purposes.

E-portfolios are increasingly used to record assessment evidence and also offer a portable record of achievement. For more information go to: http://www.nzqa.govt.nz/providers-partners/assessment-and-moderation/assessment-of-standards/generic-resources/assessment-tools-and-approaches/
Other Related Links

ASSESSMENT OPPORTUNITIES

With regards to resubmissions or further assessment opportunities:

- Tertiary providers must refer to their organisation’s policies

Resubmission of Learner Work

It is expected that assessors would use professional judgement before offering a resubmission to a learner, bearing in mind that:

- a resubmission should be offered only where the assessor judges the learner capable of identifying and correcting the minor inaccuracies themselves
- no further teaching or specific feedback should occur between the final submission date and the resubmission
- only general feedback should be given. Assessors should take care not to over-direct the learners. An example of general feedback is directing the learner to the particular performance criterion or criteria they did not meet
- the learner must still be able to independently demonstrate competency against the unit standard.

Note that:

- if the resubmission contains a lot of changes to the original assessment performance, or they are significant, it is not a re-submission
- if the evidence is gathered by portfolio, or over an extended period, the use of checkpoints and feedback/feedforward will usually remove the need for a resubmission
- learners cannot resubmit their piece of work for English for Academic Purposes standard 22749, Write a text under test conditions in English for an academic purpose, and 22892, Demonstrate understanding of a spoken text and process information in English for an academic purpose.

Further assessment opportunity

When a learner has not provided evidence of achievement from previously assessed work, providers can offer a further opportunity for assessment of a standard. This is a re-assessment with a different text and a different set of questions.
TYPES OF DISCOURSE/TEXTS FOR ACADEMIC, GENERAL and EMPLOYMENT CONTEXTS

NZCEL Level 3 Applied

The Level 3 Applied qualification is intended to enable language development in different applied settings, academic, community and/or employment context(s).

Examples of types of discourse that can be taught and assessed in programmes leading to NZCEL Level 3 Applied include:

Level 3:

Academic:
Listening – lectures, tutorials
Speaking – small group work, oral presentations, interactions or negotiations with tutor or education provider
Reading – handouts, reference materials, web-based materials
Writing – assignments, essays, reports, reflective journals, note-taking, emails, referencing materials, reading logs

General:
Listening – talks, broadcasts, meetings, extended conversations
Speaking – committee meetings, extended interactions/conversations with neighbours, government agencies, professionals, tradespeople
Reading – leisure/recreational, social and news media, instructions
Writing – emails, minutes, blog/diary, instructions

Employment:
Listening – briefings, presentations, team meetings, health and safety instructions
Speaking – team meetings, interactions/communicating with clients, customers and colleagues, presentations, job interviews
Reading – reports, manuals, emails, minutes, proposals, promotional materials, safety notices, job descriptions, instructions
Writing – reports, minutes, note-taking, record keeping, emails, application letters, CVs, proposals, procedures (operations and health and safety procedures)

NZCEL Level 4

The three qualifications at Level 4 are intended to enable language development in three settings: academic, general and employment.

Examples of types of discourse that can be taught and assessed in programmes leading to each of the three qualifications include:

Level 4:

Academic:
Listening – lectures, seminars, tutorial groups, small group work
Speaking – tutorial group discussion, small group work, oral presentation, negotiating
Reading – textbooks, handouts, journal articles, reference materials, web-based resources
Writing – assignments, essays, reports, reflective journals, note-taking, referencing

  Text 1: EAP unit standard 22892, Demonstrate understanding of a spoken text and process information in English for an academic purpose.
  Text 2: A monologue or dialogue assessed under test conditions.
  Text 3: A monologue or dialogue assessed under test conditions or by using another approach e.g. via naturally occurring evidence/portfolio.
- Texts 2 and 3 must each be a minimum of 8 minutes, repeated once only. They must be from different contexts and on different topics.
- Texts must be assessed on separate occasions. They may be supported by video or other visuals, but these must not include large amounts of written text.

Speaking:
- A minimum of three spoken texts in total i.e.
  Text 1: EAP unit standard 22891, Deliver an oral presentation in English for an academic purpose (a minimum of 8 minutes)
  Text 2: One dialogue assessed under test conditions.
  Text 3: A monologue or dialogue assessed under test conditions or by using another approach e.g. via naturally occurring evidence/portfolio.
- Texts 2 and 3 must each be a minimum of 8 minutes. They must be from different contexts and on different topics.
- Texts may be supported by video or other visuals, but these must include only a minimal amount of written text.
- Texts must be assessed on separate occasions and audio-visually recorded.

Reading:
- A minimum of three texts in total i.e.
  Texts 1 and 2: EAP unit standard 22751, Read and process information in English for academic purposes (a minimum of 3000 words in total across two texts)
- Text 3: Can be collected via naturally occurring evidence/portfolio, with a minimum of two different text types, on different topics.
• Vocabulary level: must be guided by first 2500 words of the New General Service List (Browne, Culligan and Phillips, 2013), the New Academic Word List (Browne, Culligan and Phillips, 2013) and specialised terms in academic and/or professional fields.

• Linguistic features of the target text types must incorporate appropriate vocabulary, grammar and style.

Writing:

• A minimum of three texts in total i.e.

  Text 1: EAP unit standard 22749, Write a text under test conditions in English for academic purposes (approximately 500 words)

  Text 2: EAP unit standard 22750, Write a crafted text for a specified audience using researched material in English for academic Purposes (a minimum of 800 words).

  Text 3: A text assessed under test conditions or by using another approach e.g. via naturally occurring evidence/portfolio (a minimum of 500 words).

• There must be a minimum of two different text types, on different topics, with layout and linguistic features appropriate to the text type.

• Texts must be assessed on separate occasions.

NOTE:

While five Level 4 EAP standards (27 credits) are mandatory for NZCEL Level 4 Academic, programmes must also include sufficient learning components and assessment to make up the 60 credits required for the qualification.

Refer to Appendix 6 English Language (EL) and English for Academic Purposes (EAP) unit standards – mapped to NZCEL graduate profile outcomes to show additional standards which can be used to meet this requirement.
Appendix 5: New Zealand Certificates in English Language (NZCEL)
Language Skills and Control Descriptors

The NZCEL Language Skills and Control Descriptors specify the linguistic abilities which learners are expected to demonstrate at each level. These should inform the development of assessment tasks to meet the graduate profile outcomes.
