QUESTION THREE: Reliability and usefulness

"The natural and healthy conditions of colonial life produced the stalwart and athletic sons of whom New Zealand may be justly proud."

Richard Seddon, New Zealand Premier, 1905

Source: Phillips, J. O. C. (1984). Rugby, war and the mythology of the New Zealand male. The New Zealand Journal of History, 18(2), 90. https://www.nzjh.auckland.ac.nz/docs/1984/NZJH_18_2_01.pdf

This quote is an example of the idea that the 1905 'Originals' were proof that New Zealand's rural nature made British colonists fitter, healthier, and better.

How useful could the information in Sources I–L be to a historian evaluating the validity of this idea? Use TWO of these sources to support your argument.
