1. Ki ōu whakaaro ka tino hiahia te moko kia tū hei kuia mo te marae? Whakamāramatia mai ki āu ake kupu he aha i pērā ai. Tikina ngā kōrero i te tuhinga hei taunaki i tō whakautu.

Do you think that the moko wants to be a kuia on the marae? Explain why, using examples from the text.

I think that the moko wants to be a kuia on the marae because she is very beautiful like a kuia should be, she is caring and loving, she is ~~fit~~ ~~good~~ ~~at~~ healthy and she can sing in te reo māori. She can do everything a kuia can and should be able to do and she enjoys it as well. Also, if she decides she wants to be a kuia she can improve her skills as she grows up and can learn more about what it takes.

Do you think that humour is a good way to build relationships? Explain why, using examples from the text.

In this instance, I do believe that humour is a good way to build relationships. The Nana and her mokopuna are enjoying the time they're spending together because they're laughing ^{and} smiling. When the Nana says that her moko might break people's ears with her singing, the moko knows that she is joking and is able to laugh ^{along} with her. ~~It~~ It is also good to build relationships as it ~~almost~~ almost creates a middle ground between two people; it gives them something in common, just like the moko and her Nana. Due to humour they can enjoy each other's company even if they don't have much in common/ to talk about.

3. Ki ōu whakaaro, he aha te tūranga mahi o te matua? Tikina ngā kōrero i te tuhinga hei taunaki i tō whakataau.

What type of work do you believe the father is employed in? Provide examples from the text to support your ideas.

I believe the father is employed in marine work, but more specifically surfing. I think the father carves surfboards. The father understands the language of the earth, the trees, the water and the people. He really enjoys the water and using waka. If you combine all of his skills, he ~~must~~ can produce waka (surfboards) that can speak the language of the water, just like he can. This skill is very hard to learn and you must know the ocean first, which is why the child is learning to understand the waves and ocean.

4. E whakapono ana te matua, he reo o te moana. Tuhia mai ētahi whakaaro hei taunaki i taua whakahau? I whakaae koe? He aha ai?

The father believes that the ocean has a language. Provide examples to illustrate why he thinks this. Do you agree? Provide examples from your own experience, and link them with examples from the text.

The father believes the earth, trees, ocean and people all have a language and you must listen to their language and learn it to enjoy our world. I agree with this, because at ~~the~~ our local beach, the best surfers may not necessarily be the fittest or fastest but they can read the waves and figure out where would be the biggest/best wave. The ocean ~~also~~ ^{also} ~~says~~ ~~are~~ speaks, in regards to fishing. If you ^{are greedy and} take too much or the biggest fish, the population dies off; if you disrespect the ocean and it's inhabitants by littering, it in turn will give you less ~~beautiful~~ bounty or shellfish that have been poisoned and can't be eaten. So overall, the ocean speaks in many different ways but ~~it do~~ I believe it does have a language just like the father in the text said.
