(b) (i) and (ii)	The participants of the Dates and Figs social enterprise work together as a whole as follows: Sponsors have contributed by donating their resources such as advertising, an old van for transport, cooking equipment, and discounted food ingredients. One local businesswoman has donated her time and kitchen facilities to help train the refugee women and upskill them in health, food safety, and management. The community has contributed by supporting the Pledge Me fundraisers that help to provide financial support to the business. The grants and donations are invested back into the enterprise to keep it sustainable and running for the workers and their families. The customers from the community also contribute to the success of the Dates and Figs enterprise by allowing the enterprise to deliver a unique experience, as well as an appreciation for the flavours of their cooking. The refugee women are the employees of the enterprise. Their background forms the mission, attitude, and purpose for the enterprise and the community. Refugee families are influenced by the success of the enterprise and the way the employees connect and integrate with the community. The families not only support the lifestyle of the employees who have a similar background but may also be inspired to form further partnerships and start their own businesses in the community. The social enterprise founders create the mission of the enterprise and a safe space for employment. They enable training and facilities that will likely inspire other members of the community to take up similar opportunities to work and deliver a service. The well-being of the individuals, families, and society are interconnected. The individuals are key / central to the business, and their well-being is shaped by the support from their families and from society. For example, entrepreneurial women within the company provide jobs to refugee women who then support their families. Society partnerships help to sustain the enterprise and employment of these women. The refugee families' spiritual and mental well-being is enhanced through the success, recognition, and financial gain of the enterprise. The support of society boosts the mental, spiritual, and social well-being of the refugee individuals and families through the support they show. This support enhances physical well-being through their donations of healthy food, and affordable transport. The support, engagement, and togetherness of all three groups supports the well-being of each.	Describes how TWO participants work together.	Explains how THREE participants work together using specific examples from the resource booklet. Provides connections between individuals, family, and society over time.	Explains, through clear connections, how ALL five participants work together. Explains clearly how each of the groups affect the well-being of the others (individual, family, society) over time.

(c)	Dates and Figs would struggle to exist and sustain themselves without the support of their volunteers / sponsors in the following ways: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Paying the employees would become difficult without the financial support from local businesses and fundraisers, e.g. Pledge Me. Overheads and increased expenses would also become unsustainable. • Without transport donation from a local car dealer, the enterprise would have difficulty both in sourcing their ingredients, but also in engaging physically with members of the community. They may need to hire a van, which would add to costs. • If the enterprise and its founders withdrew their support for refugees outside of the enterprise and their families, the refugee community may not have the same opportunities, and may instead be offered low-skilled jobs. • If the local businesswoman did not provide a kitchen and equipment for free, the business would not be possible, as the cooks would not be able to cook. The enterprise may not have any employees, nor could they pay the overheads. • If the local markets withdrew their donations and discounts of fresh and specialist ingredients, the costs would go up considerably. The customer might be less satisfied with non-fresh / authentic foods and may be charged more. 	Describes the consequence if each of the three volunteers / sponsors withdraws their support.	Explains how the well-being OR interdependence of Dates and Figs is affected if each of the three volunteers / sponsors withdraws their support.	Explains how the well-being AND interdependence of Dates and Figs is affected if each of the three volunteers / sponsors withdraws their support.
