Summary of review and consultation process

In 2003-2004, legislative changes were made to the Animal Products Act 1999. As a result, the New Zealand Food Safety Authority has reviewed its approach to requirements for risk-based programmes for food safety and suitability. This has enabled a more meaningful approach to risk-based applications that aligns with New Zealand's domestic food review currently under way, and with international trends in food safety and suitability.

The review of these unit standards was influenced by the legislative changes. The review began in 2004 and involved consultation with PSTO registered workplace assessors, the moderator, and the NZFSA coordinator.

Main changes resulting from the review

The review process has resulted in the following changes to the unit standards:

- For unit standards 19514 and 19515, there have been extensive changes made to special notes, including definitions, and changes and additions to elements and performance criteria.
- For unit standards 19515 and 19516, titles have been changed.
- In addition, special notes have been updated in unit standard 19516.
