Summary of review and consultation process

The review of the Iwi/Māori social services unit standards was part of the planned review cycle. It took into account the need to improve them to better reflect the needs of providers of Iwi/Māori social services, and to ensure the appropriate knowledge, skills and values are met.

The feedback from providers and employers clearly identified the need to improve the unit standards.

Te Kaiāwhina Ahumahi began the review process in 2004, and this has involved:

- focus groups of stakeholders, including education and training providers and employers
- a review of the outcomes of all moderation activities since the unit standards were registered, and consultation with Te Kaiaromatawai o Te Motu (National Moderator for these standards)
- discussions between the original unit standard writer and some stakeholders since the unit standards were first registered
- consultation with industry experts on specific unit standards.

Main changes resulting from the review

The review process has resulted in the following changes to the unit standards:

- new titles for some unit standards (for accuracy and macronisation)
- credit changes for unit standards 16270, 16272 and 16792
- level changes for unit standards 16792 and 19401
- registration of two new unit standards
- editing of special notes for format, consistent use of language and concepts, references to resources, removal of redundant special notes, and legislative change
- improvement in the specification of elements and performance criteria
- extensive revisions to formatting of range notes and specification of evidence for unit standards
- amending some unit standards in terms of concepts from te ao Māori.
