The next qualification review is planned to take place during 2013.

Summary of review and consultation process

The Cookery Advisory Group has implemented a major review of their qualifications and unit standards that has taken over 18 months to complete. Industry, Training Providers and Schools have all participated in the process which has resulted in a change in approach to unit standards at Level 3 and above. All of the knowledge unit standards at Level 3 and above have designated as expiring which has resulted in changes to the structure of the qualifications. The changes have had extensive consultation and were endorsed in May 2008 by the Cookery Advisory Group.

Main changes resulting from the review

- Changes in credit totals.
- Changes in qualification structure.
- Amendments to unit standards titles, levels and credits following review.

Transition

People currently working towards earlier versions of these qualifications may either complete the requirements of those versions or transfer to the new versions. However candidates enrolled in the Level 2 or 3 qualifications are encouraged to transfer to version 5 of that qualification.

The last date for assessment against version 4 of these qualifications is December 2013.

Qualifications 0552 and 0553 contain a standard that replaces an earlier standard. For the purposes of these qualifications, people who have gained credit for the expiring standard are exempt from the requirement to gain credit for the replacement standard – see table below.
