NZQA Māori Qualifications Services has completed the review the unit standard listed above.

Date review report published

August 2011

Summary of review and consultation process

The standard was inadvertently omitted from the review of Tikanga standards completed in December 2010.

The standard has not been awarded since its registration in 1999, it is the only remaining Tikanga standard registered at Level 8, and the Coroners Act 1988 on which the standard is based was repealed by the Coroners Act 2006. Therefore, the standard is to expire and will not be replaced. The expiry date has been set to coincide with the other expiring Tikanga standards reviewed in December last year.

There are no impacts on the Consent and Moderation Requirements (CMR), Consents to Assess or Qualifications resulting from this review.

The category D unit standard will expire at the end of December 2012
