Guidance Information

- 1 While there is no article 4 in Te Tiriti o Waitangi its inclusion in performance criterion 2.1 refers to the verbal promise that was made to respect freedom of religion (sometimes called the fourth article of Te Tiriti). On the day of the signing of Te Tiriti o Waitangi, specific enquiry was made as to the free tolerance of religious matters including Māori custom. In a statement read just prior to the signing of Te Tiriti, Governor Hobson declared that: the several faiths of England, of the Wesleyans, of Rome and also the Māori custom, shall alike be protected.
- 2 It is envisaged that students will be given the opportunity to develop ideas as to what a treaty is and what its purpose is. It may be of use to study treaties used for other indigenous, first nation or minority groups.
- 3 There are significant differences between iwi and rohe understandings and the significance given to Te Tiriti. Many iwi did not sign Te Tiriti; however, they recognise its significance and impact.
